

Photos of Tin Hau Temple, Joss House Bay, Sai Kung

The front façade of Tin Hau Temple,
Joss House Bay

The granite lintel dated 1877 at the main entrance of Tin Hau Temple, Joss House Bay

The sea-facing setting is the most distinctive feature of Tin Hau Temple, Joss House Bay.

The main building is a two-hall structure.
An incense pavilion is built between the two halls.

The statues of Tin Hau and Madam Golden Flower at the altars in the rear hall

In front of the altars, there are sculpted figures of two maids and two guardian assistants, the Thousand League Eyes (right) and Wind-Flavouring Ears (left).

The boat-shaped wooden panel dated 1925 above the screen doors in the entrance hall

Decorative fascia board, murals and mouldings of animal and human figurines at the incense pavilion

Residential chamber of Tin Hau at the subsidiary building